DARTMOOR RESOURCE

The Dartmoor Resource website is approaching its first anniversary. It enables the online visitor to view the history, ecology, folklore and communities of Dartmoor through the interpretative eyes of the performing arts. It also encourages contributions from members of the wider community about current and past performing arts events that interpret Dartmoor.

DARTMOOR RESOURCE

The Dartmoor Resource website is approaching its first anniversary. It enables the online visitor to view the history, ecology, folklore and communities of Dartmoor through the interpretative eyes of the performing arts. It also encourages contributions from members of the wider community about current and past performing arts events that interpret Dartmoor. It contains a wide range of video clips from films, plays, shadow-puppet plays and animations, as well as audio files of interviews, and in-depth articles, for instance on Childe the Hunter (a seminal Dartmoor myth), on Robin Hood plays (common in both Ashburton and Chagford in the 16th century), and on more recent music and dance on Dartmoor. The website is informed by MED Theatre's pioneering work on the history of theatre on Dartmoor. There is a significant section for the performance work of schoolchildren, which will be added to year by year. Visit www.dartmoorresource.co.uk

MED Theatre's new community play on the life of Dartmoor's great 'improver' Thomas Tyrwhitt will be performed at
